Now, as the big debate of Commonwealth prime min-isters draws to a close, the lines are said to be drawn in much the same manner. The British magazine The Economist, analyzing a recent survey, says it looks as though in general the young people and the well-educated classes support Britain's entry into the European Economic Community, while opposition comes from older folks and the traditionally minded. the traditionally-minded.

PMs Can't Agree on Statement

Commonwealth prime ministers failed to agree on a joint communique at their conference session today and will resume discussion of its terms Wednesday.

The Commonwealth leaders discussed the communique for two hours this afternoon and for a shorter period this morning before adjourning the day's session.

The conference is scheduled to end Wednesday and sources said the communique may be issued in the afternoon.

Conference sources said the draft communique being stud-ied by the prime ministers summed up the conference as a whole, covering not only the crucial question of British en-try into the European Com-mon Market, but also interna-tional affairs, which the ministers discussed Monday after-noon and this morning.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, marking his 67th birthday, was reported to be sounding out Commonwealth reaction to his surprise proposal Monday for a free world conference aimed at reducing international trade barriers. (See also

So far, reaction has been mainly cool with little enthusi-asm for the idea evident in the statements of other prime min-isters who have commented on it. The Canadian delegation has indicated it doesn't expect to win outright approval for the Diefenbaker proposal in the final conference commu-

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here today and tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness— and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria today and tomorrow, Septem-ber 18 and 19.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison said that he himself will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hairworried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. today and tomorrow at the Hotel Sussex.

Examine You Free

"I want to make it clear that you incur no charge or obliga-tion by seeing me," director Harrison said.

Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are 'hopeless'."

Offers No Cure-All

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all that will correct every one of the 18 scalp disorders that cause most baldness."

Harrison said that sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results, "For this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

Who Can Be Helped?

Will this new treatment cure baldness? "No." said Harrison sincerely. "We can not help men who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss, but where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usu-ally, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

Satisfy 95%

"Our biggest problem is not doing what we claim to do." declared Harrison. "We satisfy 95%

A Case of Dollar Anaemia

MONTH FROM TODAY THE A British Columbia Hospitals' Association will be holding an important meeting in Penticton. At that time the dissatisfaction of many hospitals with the provincial govern-ment's treatment of them will be thoroughly aired.

At the moment the cause of concern is clear. The hospitals face mounting costs in their operations. The government is slow in meeting its commitments. In consequence hospitals are running behind and in some cases cannot pay their bills

This situation arises, moreover, while the federal government is carrying a substantial share of hospital costs under the arrange-ment in force for the last two or three years. Over a period of time, very close budgeting by the provincial govern-ment has forced many of the smaller hospitals to use up their working capital. They have no lee-way between income and expenditure to handle pressing accounts until money is provided by the province. When that money is slow reaching the hospitals, some of the tradesmen go without payment and, in the case of Vernon, hospital staffs are not paid on time.

This is a highly unsatisfactory situation, one calculated to destroy the morale of staffs and to discourage those citizens who voluntarily serve on hospital boards for the benefit of their communities.

There is a strong belief in some hospital quarters that these institutions are not receiving the money which the public, through its pay-ment of the higher sales tax, has been providing for hospital opera-tion. Mr. Eric Martin, speaking for the government, says they are. He says that two-fifths of the estimated returns from the sales tax this year runs to $35,000,000 and that the budget estimate for hospitals is $34,991,169. No one challenges these figures. They are estimates. Last year, however, payments to hospitals fell $2 million short of 40 per cent of sales to collection.

cent of sales tax collections.

Mr. Martin says that if the hos-Mr. Martin says that if the hospitals are in financial difficulties, it's their own fault. They should operate more prudently. This year he says, hospitals are receiving more income than ever before.

Of course the government is justified in keeping a close watch on disbursements of funds for hospital maintenance. The government is maintenance. The government is trustee of public funds and must see that none of the money is wasted.

At the same time the government must realize that many hospitals in British Columbia are in trouble. They haven't enough money to get along and if they cannot meet their bills something will have to -service, staff morale, up-todate medicine.

No one should be better informed on that point than Mr. Mar-tin. He should understand, also, that the cost of modern medicine is not static, that it keeps advancing. He should also know that if, as some spokesmen say, the govern-ment is tardy in advancing needed and authorized funds to some hospitals, it is in effect cutting down their bloodstream. The result can be anything but healthy for the institutions so vital to their respective communities.

Once more the minister and some leaders in the hospital field are sharply divided in their estimates of the situation. The public, whose health and treatment are at stake, will watch developments in Penticton next month with anxiety.

A Hand for the Natives

Two current discussions on native affairs in the United States should create more than passing interest in British Columbia.

One concerns the plea of Indians, Aleuts and Eskimos in Alaska for preservation of their hunting grounds and traditional rights in the far north. The other centres on an appeal of distressed people in Acoma, an ancient Indian pueblo high on a New Mexican mesa—for Peace Corps help at home.

In Alaska the natives want to keep their Arctic world open to them for the life they know, hunting where and when they choose for food, preserving their pride as an independent people and maintaining their mineral rights in the land the Eskimos claim.

The plea is made because the natives realize that the acquisitive-ness of the white man could hive off important parts of their territory commercial and other purposes and thus reduce the land area on which they depend for livelihood.

At the other extreme, the Acoma their educational opportunities are small. They ask for the kind of help that the Peace Corps provides for as those of Acoma.

Further, the native peoples of Alaska have persuasive advocates speaking for them in high places and look with some hope for a heart, and the Indians themselves, had better be ready to pitch in and help in a big way."

The significance of these move-ments in the United States cannot be overlooked by British Columbia and Canada. In this province and Break-Up of Commonwealth this country we have quite a way May I suggest to the British Colum the native before we give people the assistance and construc-tive leadership which will help them to achieve economic self-sufficiency, people have fallen on evil times. tournaments as countries including Spain, Italy, Hungary and South American republics have taken the spotlight.

While this deterioration has occurred for Britain on the international front, the spectator interest at home has been languishing. The outcome has been languishing. The outcome has been a very hard look at British soccer by the men who run it and the institutions which are maintained by it.

It appears that the time has arrived to create the happier workman on the lined turf of English fields. Higher rewards should encourage a bigger recruiting pool as bright young people with soccer ability no longer reject that profession on the grounds that it is too poorly paid. The English soccer player presumably will be less like poorly paid. The English soccer Those Who Pray player presumably will be less like the ball with which he plays. In future, as far as pay and working conditions are concerned, he will not be kicked around as he has been on occasion.

How Not to Make Friends

SENATOR KENNETH KEATING, a New York Republican, probably speaks for a substantial number of his fellow countrymen when he protests against Canada permitting Russian supply planes to fly over this nation on the way to Cuba.

When he calls Canada's action "intolerable" he does little to make friends or influence his neighbors to the north. Nor does he serve the cause of accord, between the two retieves as each side of the unfortinations on each side of the unforti-fied frontier when he seeks "an immediate meeting of NATO min-

Behind the Common Market Negotiations

UNLESS Prime Minister Macmillan encounters an unexpected revolt in the House of Commons, it now seems highly likely that the new Europe, with Britain as a full mem-ber, will shortly come into being. There could be a revolt, of course. Or the Prime Minister could simply be intimidated by the loud agitation against British entry into the Common Market, and ould therefore be induced to accept the alternative being discreetly offered by Gen. de Gaulle— "an economic arrangement between "an economic arrangement between Britain and Europe" which would not involve British membership.

All the same, the outlook today is very different from the outlook some months ago, when Britain's admission to the Common Market first began to seem doubtful, because Gen. de Gaulle's opposition to Britain's admission first began to be manifest.

The French President's attitude has whose plight is similar to their own.

Unfortunately, in the latter instance, Peace Corps assistance under current American legislation is limited to foreign countries. But important voices are being raised to make it applicable to such peoples as those of Acoma.

The French President's attitude has not changed since then in any material way. If he had the sole say in the matter, it is clear he would much prefer the suggested British-European arrangement as the best way out. What has changed, rather is the Gaullist calculation on which the possible exclusion of Britain was based.

No Solitary Veto

As first reported in this space, while desiring Britain's exclusion, de Gaulle never intended to keep Britain out by his solitary veto; that, he always knew, would be going too far. He always intended, instead, to use his power to prevent any material reduction of the admission fee Britain would have to pay. rever intended to keep Britain out by his solitary veto; that, he always knew, his solitary veto; that, he always knew, would be going too far. He always intended, instead, to use his power to predians' cause, points out, "All who have the Indians' true interests at mission fee Britain would have to pay.

And he calculated that if the fee were not materially reduced, the British would refuse to pay, and would therefore remain outside of Europe.

As Gen. de Gaulle expected, the admission fee for Britain has not been sharply cut by the negotiations which have taken place in the interval, But something else has happened which de Gaulle did not expect.

The British have, shown strongest indications that they mean to enter the European club, even if they have to pay the fee they formerly described as impossibly high.

The French have watched, somewhat anxiously, for any sign of a change in anxiously, for any sign of a change in this British intention, caused by the anti-Common Market storm at the Comnwealth Prime Ministers' meeting in ndon. There has been no such sign Hence British entry into Europe may perhaps be agreed upon in the first round of the renewed British-European talks, which are scheduled to begin soon.

Franco-German Union

It must be added, however, that there is one other uncertain, indeed unpredictable, factor in the situation. It has been introduced by de Gaulle's triumphal tour of Germany, where the French President dropped hints about the need for some sort of closer "union". more intimate "collaboration" cen Germany and France, What de Gaulle was talking abo it can be stated on high authority, was a special France-German political arrangement that would give organic expression to his so informal partnership with Chancellor Adenauer. This may come one day. But the primary aim of de Caulle's hints, at this time, was to force a renewal of the stalled negotian tions for the creation of a larger Euro-pean political community.

These negotiations were broken off at the insistence of the Dutch and Belgians. The Dutch and Belgians have algians. The Dutch and Beigians have ac-ways opposed their renewal, on the grounds that decisions at this stage about the future political organization of Europe would make it more difficult for the British to join the club. The British themselves have strongly endorsed this argument.

The blocking of the negotiations has caused great annoyance in Paris where Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak is especially unpopular.

Spaak Blamed

"We cannot let our policy be obstructed by a Spaak!" Such was the formula employed to explain the hints dropped by de Gaulle in Germany.

Besides a certain pique, it clearly reveals the intention to use the threat of Franco-German political talks as the lever, in order to force the renewal of the larger European political talks.

Even the most Europeanindes

Even the most Europe-minded Frenchman now favors such a renewal, without regard to the status of the bargaining with the British. Presumably this is because they fear Chancellet. Adenauer may not survive much longer, and they want the European political community to be established while community to be established while Adenauer remains in office.

If the lever works, and talks about the political organization of Europe are resumed at an early date, it is hard to foresee the exact effect in London. Most probably, however, the effect will be to hasten the British decision to enter the Common Market in order to be able to join the unavoidably protracted and join the unavoidably protracted and complex political discussion before major decisions have been reached.

In sum, although another abrupt reversal of the trend is always possible, the new, enlarged Europe seems to be in the making. It may become a reality, politically as well as economically, be fore too many months have passed.

... REPORTING

OTTAWA — The unpredictable future one can tell if Prime Minister Diefenbaker did Canada and the Commonwealth a service or a disservice in London last week.

His unexpectedly firm stand in opposition to Britain becoming a member of the European Economic Community on terms so far negotiated between Britain and the Inner Six could do one of three things:

It could tip the scales against British membership, by making it politically impossible for the British government to carry out its plans against overwhelming condemnaby the Commonwealth atop strong and apparently increasing opposition among the

It could so strengthen Britain's hand at the negotiating table in Brussels that the Inner Six would offer Britain a better deal to bring her in. If this happened, Canada and other Commonwealth countries with vested interests in easy access to the British arket would suffer less economic injury. Or it could fail to do either, with Britain wealth recriminations.

The first result would preserve the status quo, and might prevent the attrition over the years of our sales to Britain of important commodities like wheat, aluminum, news-

But there is reason to question whether today's status quo could thus be long preserved. Trade between Canada and Britain is dependent on continued British prosperity and the British government maintains that British prosperity will decline if British goods are denied access to the markets of vestern Europe by the European Common

Breeding Alone Not the Answer

By HAL MALONE

You can breed a good stud to a reliable mare and still come up with a fizzeroo, the man said.

This was at the Sandown watering hole late Monday. The horses had been tucked into bed and the punters, some harpy, some flat (especially where they wear their walless) were bound for home.

Take this horse that ran at Vancauyer this summer and he set the track record of 1:43.1.

"He's bred to beat the band," the man said. "But run? Why when he goes into a turn he looks like he has seven legs. And doesn't know what to do with any one of them."

So now Steve Johnson is $4,300 riche. And Sir Jungle is six for 22. Not bad for the "poor little feller" whose pedigree would never gain him an entry in turidom's "Who's Who." with any one of them."
"Ran seventh, eighth and

"In the same race?" the first quipped.

The breeding talk shifted to Sir Jungle. He's by Tit Tat Toe out of Jungle Chick. No blue-blood there. A month ago Steve Johnson ran him in a $1,000 claiming race. Nobody bothered to take him home. NO TAKERS

Steve Johnson, his house-mother, didn't cry. Jungle won that day. His fourth of the sea-son. Two races later Steve sent him with a $1,250 erowd. Man and horse met in the winner's circle. For the fifth time.

Form Chart on Page 10. Johnson next hoisted Sir Jun-Johnson next noisted Sir Jun-gle into $2,000 society. No luck, He dropped him down for $1,600. But a flier called Island Flag beat the pants off him and everything else. Time for the six furlongs was 1:11 and no change—a few tenths off the rack record. His last chase at Vancouver-

Fils last chase at Vancouver— for $2,000 again—Jungle had to be eased up when a horse fell in front of him.

QUICK STEPPING

Jungle doesn't have Siwash Grace's early steam. So Larry Kunitake, the Hawaiian apprentice, moved him into second place and sat there, cool as a pineapple. At the three-eighths pole Kunitake pressed the "go" button and it was "bye-bye everybody."

Bay Toe, moving late, was three-quarters of a length short at the tape. Siwash Grace, puffing mightily, was third. Tallyco? He made it . . . finally and

Cotton Knits For Tots A Real Dutch Treat

By PENNY SAVER

If mother is going to step out in a French import I think it is only proper that her infant son John should accompany her in the latest Dutch styles.

Children's clothing Penny is referring to can boast of more than haute couture. These are cotton knit overshirts, made in Holland, that are as dressy as any woollen pullover and are machine washable.

made in Holland, that are as dressy as any woollen pullover and are machine washable.

In the infant sizes, shirts are styled with a cross-over back to eliminate the eternal struggle of getting a pullover over the baby's head. These particular shirts are white with a dainty pink, yellow or blue trim and cost $1.49.

To match the overshirts there are cotton leggings for $2.25.

In the same store there is also a host of undershirts to choose from in the finest cotton knit. For little girls there are underpants and shirts in an eyelet pattern with narrow lace edging. The fancy undershirts cost $1.05, but plain ones are available for 60 cents.

For the toddler and the pre-school child there are many Clinic: Q.—I have a fe-male cat about 7 years old who seems to have trouble with her two front paws. She cries sometimes, and likes to get on rough surfaces where she paws the ground and sheathes and unseathes her claws. Also her gums are very inflamed and saliva runs from her mouth. I'll appreciate your advice, P.T., Vancouver, B.C.

A .- The paw symptoms you describe are not uncom-mon at all and usually indicate that the cat's nails are too long, or that some of the nails have become ingrown. This would account for your cat's crying when she paws rough surfaces. The in-flamed gums and saliva are another story. They indicate loose or bad teeth, or some other affliction of the mouth. BRIDGE LESSON The result of the next hand of ' world champion-ship match depended on South's fi a bid. America, sitting South, made an opening diamond South passed and West went on to three spades. He didn't think that anyone would double him at that con-tract and he expected to get seven tricks out of his own hand.

He got his seven tricks plus East's ace of hearts to be down one for minus 50. North opened with a diamond lead and South con-tinued the suit. West discarded a heart on the fourth and last dia-mond—if he had ruffed he would have been down two tricks.

His three spade bid was the right decision. North would have lost

Eggheads Versus Boneheads' in Market Debate

Canadian Press Staft Writer Shades of the Suez crisis! When it comes to the Common ion is behaving just as in 1956. Then, the Anglo-French in-tervention was thought to have split Britons into two clear groups. Politically - minded people generally deplored the action, while ordinary citizens applauded it. as a straight case of intellect-uals versus the proletariat or, more crudely, as "the eggheads versus the boneheads."

Now, as the big debate of Commonwealth prime ministers draws to a close, the lines are said to be drawn in much the same manner. The British magazine The Economist, analyzing a recent survey, says it looks as though and the well-educated classes support Britain's entry into comes from older folks and the traditionally-minded.

The sort of opinion now noving against the Common Market, the magazine adds, is "very like one large segment of the opinion that reacted so violently" against criticism of alliance of the elderly upper classes and the blunt old traditionalist unskilled - laborer

In a similar vein, the Sun-day Telegraph draws a paral-lel with the British opinion that supported Neville Chamberlain's appeasement policy at Munich.

Chamberlain, too, could claim a majority, made up of the unrealistic—"the same dis-mal coalition that is opposing Prime Minister Macmillan today."

A separate article in the same paper says it is "the young, the adventurous and the more intelligent" who want to go into Europe, while the "calculating, the tradi-tional and the old" resist Lord Altrincham, writing in says British people in the mass are against entry, whereas "top people" are convinced Britain should join, Altrincham recommends a "sus-tained and passionate" cam-paign by Britain's leaders to persuade the country of the rightness of the Common Mar-be divided along the lines sugnoted that the press comments quoted are all from sources that support the Comomn Market. Whatever the division between young and old, informed or uninformed, it is almost certainly true to say that a great number of Britons simply find it difficult to make up their minds about a decision that is largely an act

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here today and tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness— and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria today and tomorrow, Septem-ber 18 and 19.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp

In his announcement, Harrison said that he himself will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hairworried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. today and to-morrow at the Hotel Sussex.

Examine You Free "I want to make it clear that ou incur no charge or obliga-

ARTHUR MAYSE

There are worse pursuits for a mellow Indian summer morning than picking blackberries-not the little wild ground-creepers, luscious though they are, but the big fellows that take the sun in generous abundance along our Saanich byroads.

Someone may have planted these prickly mounds and hillocks long ago, but I prefer to regard the vines as strays chance-seeded. That way, the itous, like the discovery of a good trout hole or crab flat.

We found a fine patch, Win and I, last weekend. It undu-lated for a hundred feet or more alongside a railway spur near the pony ranch where ou daughter was spending her allowance in blissful comp with a Welsh-Arab called

It isn't hard to tell where a woman has been picking. She does a more thorough job than a man, staying sensibly in one place till the last ripe berry has been tweaked free.

A man, on the other hand, is less patient. He tends to dis-miss the near, small berries as not worthy of his notice. He wades in, unworried by wasps or grass snakes, foraging bearlike toward the thorny heart of the patch.

His wife outpicks him, of course; or at least mine did me on our gold and blue morn-We pooled our take and admired it, resting on splint-ery old railway ties while the sun played its amiable makebelieve of summer returned, and yellowing leaves offered the sober truth of autumn on

For blackberries shouldn't, e hoarded, even when baked with a touch of apple in a pie. They're transient as autumn, made to be gob bled before the alder boughs are bare.

On the Cowichan a while ago, I watched one of Brit-ish Columbia's most skilled and ardent fly fishermen drift a stone-fly imitation of his own devising down a shadowed run. It disap-peared in a flirt of spray, and a quarter of an hour later, I contributed my two cents worth by netting a brown trout bigger than you'd believe if I told you.

How to save and improve your hair demonstrated by expert here today and tomorrow

New home treatment methods for preventing baldness— and growing thicker hair—will be demonstrated in Victoria today and tomorrow, Septem-ber 18 and 19.

This news was released here today by M. D. Harrison, internationally famous director of Harrison Hair and Scalp

Specialists.

In his announcement, Harrison said that he himself will conduct the Victoria clinic. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. today and tomorrow at the Hotel Sussex.

Harrison said.

"Your only obligation is to yourself—to free your mind of worries about hair loss, dandruff, itching, or other scalp disorders, by learning how to take care of your hair. If your trouble is beyond the scope of Harrison Home treatment, we will frankly tell you so. But less than five per cent of the people we examine are hopeless."

Offers No Cure-All Harrison emphasized that his new home treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

inis new nome treatment is neither "mail-order" nor "cure-all."

"We always make a personal examination before suggesting any treatment," he pointed out. "There is no one cure-all out. "But to overcome the average man's initial skepticism is sometimes your treatment must be changed after a few weeks to get best results. "For "this reason, you mail regular reports of your hair progress to the Harrison headquarters in Vancouver.

"Also, your scalp condition is checked personally by a Harrison trichologist at regular intervals."

But where your scalp still grows hair, we can at least save and improve what you have. Usu-tarrison method permits you ally, we can grow more hair even where you have only 'fuzz' now."

The important thing is: Bon't wait until it's too late! Best evidence of the success of Harrison treatment is the phenomenal growth of the or ganization behind it. Harrison and his affiliates maintain treatment clinics in Canada, the U.S., and Mexico. And their staff trichologists regularly do extension work in Examinations are given in more than 100 other cities.
